Grants & Request for Proposals (RFPs)

SF Environment annually grants approximately $1.4M in the areas of Environmental Justice, Waste Diversion and Toxics Reduction. Grant solicitations are generally released in mid-winter for programs to begin during the following fiscal year (July-June).

Projects selected for funding will move San Francisco closer to reaching its aggressive waste diversion goals, particularly those that achieve cost-effective, sustainable landfill diversion in areas such as materials re-use, construction and demolition, food waste, and reduction of toxics going to landfill. Environmental Justice grants focus on projects in the Bayview Hunters Point or Portrero Hill neighborhoods that promote food security; improve air quality; reduce the City's reliance on fossil-fueled power plants; and promote economic development and employment in the environmental field.

In addition, SF Environment periodically releases Requests for Proposals (RFPs) seeking subcontractors to perform specific technical support activities related to its program goals. Contracts may be awarded to "for-profits" or "non-profits" in an array of areas such as alternative fuels, outreach, energy efficiency, renewable energy and toxics reduction. RFP's are released throughout the year.
